The Law of Moses

St. Mary's newest graduate course studies the Law of Moses through its influence and interpretation in western religious, legal and political thought and in its ancient context. Through a diversity of approaches to biblical law it explores how a society orders itself around national identity, duty to God and neighbor, and principles of justice.

The fifteen-week course will be held Tuesday evenings on St. Mary's campus during the fall 2010 semester. It is also available through video-conferencing technology at facilities in Austin, Temple, College Station and Marble Falls.
