Revised

The Dean's List is based upon those students whose semester grade-point averages rank in the top ten percent of the third-year class, in the top ten percent of the second-year class, and in the top ten percent of the day and evening first-year sections. To be eligible, second- and third-year students must have completed at least twelve graded law school hours during the semester, and first-year students must have been enrolled in all courses required during the initial year of law study. For the Spring 2009 Semester, third-year students who had a semester grade-point average of 3.52 or above and second-year students who had a semester grade-point average of 3.38 or above made the Dean's List. The GPA cutoff for the Dean's List varied among the various first-year sections in both programs. Names are listed in alphabetical order.
